Crescent Dragonwagon is the author of more than 40 published books in genres including culinary, children's, adult fiction and poetry. She has written for a wide range of publications, including Cosmopolitan, Bon Appetite, Relish and The New York Times Book Review. She won the James Beard Award for her 2002 Passionate Vegetarian. She has also been featured on "Good Morning America," "Today," Food Network's "Chef du Jour," and CNN's "On The Menu."

In The Cornbread Gospels, Dragonwagon serves up a veritable cornucopia: Southwestern cornbreads, Yankee Cornbreads, high-rising, company's-coming spoonbreads, skillet-sizzled Southern-style cornbreads and more. Dragonwagon gives us delectable accompanying dishes: chilies, stews, salads, soups, and, of course, beans and greens. For cooks, as well as those who say "I read cookbooks like novels," The Cornbread Gospels is as irresistible as a wedge of straight-from-the-oven cornbread: warm, abundant and welcoming.
